

LAST DAY OF SCHOOL

Work of the Scholars Shows Prosperous Year.

The public schools closed for the summer vacation yesterday, most of them having exercises for the commencement. The schools have had a prosperous year, as the work done by the scholars shows. The closing exercises at every school were attended either by Superintendent Davis or by one of the Commissioners, all of whom devoted the day to the work of visiting. Of course, it was a great day for the little ones. The last day of school always is. And, in addition to the exercises at the schools, there was an exhibit at each place of the manual work done by the boys and girls.

"And," said Superintendent Davis last night, "the exhibit was most creditable indeed."

In addition to the school officers, there was a large attendance of interested parents at the several schools. The following was the program of exercises at Kaulani school:

PASS OUT OF SCHOOL

and creator. The speaker urged the young men to be like Theodore Roosevelt, the highest-type of the individual thinker.

After another chorus, "Now to the Lord a Noble Song," Wm. Carden stepped to the front of the platform and in a few well chosen sentences presented to Prof. Scott, on behalf of the class, a beautiful cane of coconut wood, adorned with the Hawaiian coat of arms, a miniature replica of the Hawaiian crown and a gold ornament representing the Kamehameha statue.

In accepting the cane, Prof. Scott thanked the pupils in his usual humorous way. He then referred to the statement regarding what the schools are expected to do for pupils, but he thought the schools were expected to do too many things. The modern school was certainly an improvement on the old-fashioned school, but he thought it was sometimes a case of where the good fairy came to a house and blessed it with a child, and later on the parents' greatest desire seemed to be to get it off to school that it might be cared for by teachers. However, he had never had any great trouble with parents. Some parents were imbued with the idea that the school will do everything for the child, but the greatest energy in the nourishment of the child was in the home. Schools at best, can only co-operate with the home.

He said the graduates were only twelve out of about 15,000 school children in the territory. He had heard some thoughtful men here say "we are over-educating." But 98 per cent. of that 15,000 were in the first six grades, 84 per cent. being in the first four grades. They learned there a little reading, writing, geography and arithmetic. That was the "over-education" the young people in this country were receiving. Prof. Scott made some complimentary remarks to the graduates on the excellent showing they had made during their four years, and then presented each with a diploma.

After a brief reception by the graduates, the floor was cleared and to the music of the Royal Iolani Quintette Club the students passed the next two hours in dancing to their heart's content.

The class motto, "Esse Non Videri," was conspicuous on the wall.
London will soon put on its streets a motor street cleaning machine that will do the work of 500 men. It operates rakes for caked mud, "squeegees" for wet weather, a revolving brush and a set of over lapping scrapers to complete the cleaning operation. All the refuse goes into a box. It works at the rate of eight miles an hour.

PASTE THIS UP.

Young Men Should Consider That There Are No Chances for—

The idler.
The leaver.
The coward.
The wobbler.
The ignorant.
The weakling.
The smatterer.
The indifferent.
The unprepared.
The educated fool.
The impractical theorist.
Those who watch the clock.
The slipshod and the careless.
The young man who lacks backbone.
The person who is afraid of obstacles.
The man who has no iron in his blood.
The person who tries to save on foundations.

The boy who slips rotten hours into his schooling.
The man who is always running to catch up with his business.
The man who can do a little of everything and not much of anything.
The man who wants to succeed, but who is not willing to pay the price.
The one who tries to pick only the flowers out of his occupation, avoiding the thorns.—Success.

THE BEWITCHED PENNY.

How It May Be Easily Picked Out—A Trick for the Winter Evenings.

Ten or twelve pennies are needed for this trick. Place them separately on the table, and have one of the coins chosen and marked by several persons. Get as many people to examine it as you can, so they will "all be sure to know it again." Have this coin dropped along with the other coins into a hat, and the whole shaken up so that the coins will be well mixed. Placing your hand in the hat, feel every coin, and you will at once detect which is the marked coin by its warmth. The coin has been warmed by the many hands through which it has passed. It is best to have the coins originally placed on as cold a place as possible, but you must not turn back the tablecloth, or give any other hint from which your audience can gather the secret of the puzzling rick. You can add to the wonder if you are blindfolded and allow some one of your audience to attend to all the rest except the picking of the coin from the hat.

MAKING A TOOL CABINET.

Every Boy Who Uses Tools Should Have One to Hang in His Workshop.

A very convenient tool cabinet that will hang against the wall may be made with two doors of nearly equal size, so that there will be four instead of two surfaces against which to hang tools. Says Joseph H. Adams, in St. Nicholas. The body of the chest is 30 inches high, 20 inches wide, and nine inches deep, outside measure. It is made of wood three-quarters of an inch in thickness, fastened together with screws and glue, and varnished to improve its appearance. One side of the cabinet is but three inches and a half wide, and to this side the inner door is made fast with hinges, so it will swing in against a stop-molding on the opposite side. A small bolt on the door will fasten it in place when shut in, and on both sides of this door hooks and pegs can be arranged on which to hang tools. Inside the back of the cabinet hooks and pegs can be arranged also, for saws, squares and other flat tools. The outer door is provided with a side strip to take the place of the lacking part of that side of the cabinet, and when the doors are closed in and locked the appearance of the chest will be uniform.

With a little careful planning and figuring it will not be a difficult matter to construct this cabinet and the doors so that they will fit snugly and close easily. The doors will keep their shape better if made from narrow matched boards and held together at the ends with batens or strips nailed across the ends of the boards. Two-inch wrought butts will be heavy enough for the hinges of the doors. Provide a cabinet lock at the edge of the outer door.

On the inside of the outer door some tool pegs can be arranged, and near the bottom a bit rack is made with a leather strap formed into loops as described for the tool rack. Under each loop a hole is bored in a strip of wood into which the square end of the bits will fit, so they will stand vertically and appear in an orderly row; for chisels a similar set of pockets can be made of wood.

Or the Other Way.
It is just as easy to find fault with a tall candle as it is with an electric light.—Chicago Daily News.

Waiters, says a contemporary, pick up an immense amount of useful information. Hence the term, "Wisdom while you wait"—London Globe.

are officers of the court, and no court should lend its influence subservient to a political scheme. Set your foot down on such practice. Courts and juries have nothing to do with politics. I do not like the idea that the Grand Jury has been brought together just prior to the election. We know that political parties often spring something on the candidates, which may be true or untrue, but courts and juries should not lend themselves to things of this kind.

"This matter, what has taken place, is not to deter you from doing what you think is right when you meet again." The court then dismissed the jury.

ALREADY ADJOURNED.

"Your honor," said Deputy Attorney-General Peters, "it is in line with your honor's remarks that the grand jury had already agreed to postpone consideration of this matter until next Wednesday, and had adjourned until that time."

And so the nice little plot cooked up in the Brown interest fell to the ground. The street corner shouters who had breathed all kinds of dire threats as to what the grand jury would do, who had knowledge in advance of the officers of the law Thursday night that the grand jury would meet on Friday morning, sang pretty small last night. In fact, it was hardly possible to get one of them to open his head, after the rebuke given to the Brown methods by the grand jury itself and by the courts.

The Brown men, indeed, must try a new tack—and are desperate enough to try anything. It will not much matter because the voters are prepared for them now, and no charge that they can bring will be given an ounce of weight.

BANNER NIGHT AT TUG-OF-WAR

Things are getting as hot in the tug-of-war tournament as they are in the coming election. Tonight will be a banner night for the Knights of the Rope and Cleats. The crack Stevedore team will again make their appearance and will struggle with the Fifth District. This promises to be as stiff a pull as that of Monday night between the Portuguese and Stevedores.

The Kanikaeae will meet the Lumber Yard. There is bad blood between these two teams and there will be something going when they meet.

There is more interest being taken in the junior teams than in the larger tournament. Tonight the Kakaako Jr. will meet the Portuguese Jr. team. The latter team is a crack bunch and if the lads from Kakaako hope to win they must figure on a long pull. When these youngsters start it is one continual pull until one or the other is out.

In a restaurant in Cheapside at one time customers' wants were looked after by a waiter who was renowned for the clever way in which when shouting down the lift to the cook he interpreted the different dishes; for instance, if a customer ordered sausage and bread, he told the cook "a door-step and a bag of mystery" were required. In consequence of this two city gentlemen had a wager for $5, one of them saying he was sure he could give an order which the waiter would find it impossible to twist in his usual way. Accordingly they repaired to the restaurant and Mr. Brown gave his order. "Waiter, bring me a couple of poached eggs on toast and the yolks broken." The waiter shouted down to the cook. "Adam and Eve on a raft and wreck 'em."—The Tatler.
